TWO HOMES IN OGDEN BROKEN UP BY AN ESCAPADE

On ex parte testimony this morning Judge Howell granted the petition of John Timmers for divorce from Johanna Timmers, the story told by the plaintiff being one of rather sensational features.

Mr. Timmers stated that he married the defendant at Amsterdam, Holland, in the year 1908, coming to this country to prepare a home and the wife remaining in the old country. He arranged for her to come to Ogden in 1911 and had sent her $130 to pay her fare. The wife started on the voyage and on the way met a man named Manderling with whom she eloped to Canada. There she married Manderling and a letter received from her by Mr. Timmers was to the effect that a child had been born to her and that she knew she had done wrong. She asked to be forgiven, but Mr. Timmers said that after he had taken the matter under consideration for some time, he could not reconcile himself to the situation and wrote her that he could not receive her into his home.

In connection with the case, it is said that while Mr. Timmers was waiting for his husband to return from a mission to Holland, to whom she had forwarded money, having worked as a domestic to raise the funds. With fond expectations she was looking forward to the reunion just as was Mr. Timmers. By a strange coincidence, Mr. Manderling and Mrs. Timmers sailed on the same vessel for this country and were due to arrive in Ogden the same day. Neither came and they are now man and wife in Canada.

DR. E. G. GOWANS
ON RECREATION

Dr. E. G. Gowans addressed the parents' class of the Ninth ward yesterday morning on the subject of "Recreation." In his opening remarks he said that the three factors necessary for the proper development of a child were work, play and recreation. These three things are the tools which the children should use under proper supervision and they are equally important. For this reason, they should be given an equal amount of attention.

Continuing the speaker said that character building should be the chief aim of the parents in their attitude toward their children, and gave a clear and interesting discussion on the influence of play, work and recreation, on the development of character.

"There is a great need of socializing recreation," he said, "not for financial gain, but for the general advancement of the children. Recreation of all kinds should be furnished for the young people, at the expense of the municipality, and the better class of community life, which would be the sure result of such a play, would greatly overbalance the expense to the city."

Andrew Carnegie has under consideration a plan for establishing libraries in country districts that would call for a contribution of $75,000,000 or $100,000,000 by the steel magnate.

RIOTS IN IRELAND

Dublin, July 27.—Serious rioting was begun here tonight. The city is in a state of intense excitement. The authorities fear that it will be necessary to call on the military, which will mean much bloodshed.

CITY SCHOOLS WILL BE SHORT OF FUNDS AND MUST CLOSE EARLY

Superintendent John M. Mills of the Ogden City schools states that, under the recent tax levy made by the county board of commissioners, the rate for county schools, which embraces the Ogden schools, has been reduced one and one-tenth mills, a loss of from $16,000 to $20,000 to the city school system. He contends that under that rate the city schools will be forced to close one month earlier than usual.

In fixing the tax levy the county board raised the school tax for the county district schools, embracing only the schools in the county outside of the city, three mills. Commissioner Moroni Skeen, chairman of the county board, says that the city school board was given all it asked. He says that the county board desired the city board to join in asking for an increased rate of taxation but that the city refused on the grounds that the city schools would be amply provided for without taking a joint stand with the county.

Superintendent Mills says the city school board will find itself in a deep quandary when a settlement is attempted with teachers who have been employed for the entire school year, as the city school board has entered into written contract with the teachers for a specified time.

He says that it is questionable now whether the county board of commissioners can reconsider the tax levy and that it looks very much as though the city schools will be short nearly $20,000 this year.

INSANITY THE BASIS OF DIVORCE ACTION

In the district court, George A. Jones has commenced divorce proceedings against Hilda Jones, alleging that she was committed to an insane asylum at Preston, Conn., July 22, 1909, and was afterwards deported to England.

The plaintiff alleges that he married the defendant in Liverpool, England, March 8, 1905, and that there are now two minor children in the family. He asks for divorce, the care and custody of the two children and also that a guardian ad litem be appointed for the defendant to look after her interests.

CHICKENS ARE BEING KILLED OUT OF SEASON

Ogden and other hunters are in the mountains killing chickens three weeks earlier than the law allows, and sportsmen in Ogden valley complain that, if the slaughter continues, thousands of young sagehens just hatched will perish, owing to the death of the older birds.

Those who love true sport and aim to preserve game so that there always will be birds to hunt, are strongly protesting against the illegal killing and many declare they will help prosecute any one caught in the act.

CLAIMS GOODS WERE NOT AS REPRESENTED

In the district court, in the case of the George F. Dittman Boot & Shoe company against D. Rosenthal, the defendant has filed an answer and counter claim, denying that there is due the plaintiff the sum of $2,082.25 but that, on the contrary, after making deductions for money paid and 50 per cent loss, together with freight costs, there is due only $568.30, which amount the defendant states he is ready to pay.

In the counterclaim the defendant sets up that because of a poor quality of goods delivered him he has been damaged in the sum of $1,500 and he asks judgment for that sum.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS REACH THE TOP OF OBSERVATORY

A mountain climbing party composed of William Crossman, H. L. Griffin, Seth Griffin, H. L. Grout, William Critchlow, Victor and Marcus Critchlow and Clifford and Willard Key Jr., made a trip to Observatory Peak Saturday night and Sunday morning, that proved to be well worth the energy expended.

They left the city shortly after 11 p. m. Saturday, and climbed steadily until Malan's Heights was reached. The peak was reached between 5 and 5:30 a. m. Sunday. The sunrise, as viewed from the 5000-foot eminence above the city was said by all to have been supremely beautiful, while the lights of the city, which they turned back to look at, at intervals during the climb, made a wonderful scene.

Mr. Crossman, who is 71 years of age, proved to be one of the best mountaineers in the troop and stood the arduous climb exceptionally well.

SCIENTIFIC ASPECT OF THE WORD OF WISDOM

Professor Alfred J. Pack of the University of Utah gave a splendid address in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon on the subject of "The Scientific Aspect of the Word of Wisdom." The service was conducted by Elder Frank Williams and the following musical numbers formed a pleasing part of the program:

Prelude, "Communion" (Flagler).
Duet, "Thy Will Be Done" (Sam F. Whitaker).
Solo, "The Door of Hope" (E. R. Bell).
Duet, "God is Love" (Jerome).
Solo, "After the Storms of Life" (Vera and Howard Shupe).

The invocation was offered by Elder William Owens and Prof. Pack was introduced to the congregation by Elder Heber Seawright.

In his opening remarks, Professor Pack stated that he had studied many religions carefully, but had come to the conclusion that Mormonism was in a class by itself. It is the only true religion in its entirety, he said, although there are many good doctrines taught by other creeds.

Continuing, he said that salvation was based on obedience to law and that God had given laws to men that they might work out their own salvation. The Word of Wisdom is one of these laws and if men would gain a physical salvation they must obey it. It is a sad thing that the body should grow old, while the spirit is still young, but this condition would not be, if men would study the Word of Wisdom and live according to its teachings. It is the opinion of the great scientists of the world that a proper habit of diet will make it possible for men to live forever.

In speaking of the salient features of the Word of Wisdom, he referred in particular to the awful effects of alcoholic liquors and tobacco on the human system. It is useless, he stated, for a person to believe that these things, can be indulged in even to a minor extent, for a poison is always a poison and its effects are cumulative in nature.

As to the use of tobacco, he brought out the fact that the deaths of 1600 boys, are annually traced to it, more lives than were lost in the great Titanic disaster. In the opinion of the greatest thinkers of the age, the use of cigarettes cuts down a man's efficiency for work of any kind, to a marked degree. In an investigation that was held at the University of Utah last year, the speaker stated, it was found that the users of tobacco fell 37 per cent lower in their studies than did the non-users.

Tea, coffee, cocoa and meats were also proven to come under the ban of science in a manner similar to the ban placed upon them by the word of wisdom. He cited the statement of Dr. Harvey Wiley to the effect that if the American people do not call a halt in the use of tea, coffee and kindred hot drinks, the time will come when laws will be enacted against their use, the same as laws are now being enacted against the use of liquor.

In conclusion, he said that the revelation of the word of wisdom alone was proof of the divinity of the mission of the Prophet Joseph Smith, and that through living it "the Mormon people had cut the death rate in their communities down to one-half of the death rate among gentile communities." In proof of this he cited the fact that in Salt Lake the death rate among the Mormons during 1910-12 was 9 out of 1000, while among the gentiles it was between 15 and 20 out of 1000.

CAILLAUX READS
CALMETTE WILL

Paris, July 27.—As soon as Judge Louis Albaladejo and his three associates had taken their seats on the bench this morning in the trial of Madame Caillaux, M. Caillaux demanded to be heard. He said:

"The Figaro, having accused me to-day of suborning witnesses, I would like to submit to the court some authentic papers concerning the late Gaston Calmette's relations with the Hungarian government. I have hesitated to use them, but I have decided to do so in view of the Figaro's attitude. I desire also to read the late M. Calmette's will."

Maitre Chenu—"How did you get it?"

M. Caillaux—"In the same way that you got my letters."

M. Caillaux then proceeded to read the will.

"I shall not repeat what I have already said about the bonds which unite the Figaro to certain foreign personalities. I merely inform the jury that I place at the disposition of the court authentic documents signed by Gaston Calmette, stipulating in the clearest possible fashion the conditions under which the Figaro would work in the interests of the Hungarian government. Every Frenchman will realize today what would have been the effect of that work. These documents are of unimpeachable authenticity. They were given me by Count Karolyi, chief of the Hungarian Radical party."

When he had concluded, M. Caillaux handed a bundle of papers to the presiding judge. They were not read in court.

In his speech, M. Caillaux had mentioned the name Philippe Glaser as a signer of the documents with Gaston Calmette. Glaser is one of the leading editors of the Figaro.

After reading the will, which disposed of $2,600,000, M. Caillaux said: "We may well be astonished at the singularly rapid increase of Mr. Calmette's fortune. In our middle class families it would take 150 years for such a fortune to accumulate."

"We have heard a lot of testimony," Mr. Caillaux continued, "of the fine character of M. Calmette—from Henri Bernstein (the playwright) in particular. It does not come well from a man who failed in his full duty toward his country (referring to Bernstein's alleged desertion from the army) to deliver certificates of morality."

No Excuse for Wife's Crime.
Maitre Chenu—"Would M. Caillaux tell us in what way all this excuses the crime of his wife?"

"There are some questions which ought not to be asked," Mr. Caillaux replied hotly, "but since I am asked I shall answer. There is something perhaps worse than losing one's life—that is to live by attacking women and enriching one's self at their expense."

While reading the will of M. Calmette, M. Caillaux said:

"I wish to draw particular attention to the clause saying: 'A greater part of the fortune I leave comes from a personal gift made to me by Mme. Boursin, it being understood I paid her an income therefrom during her life.'"

"What do we gather from this will?" Mr. Caillaux continued. "First of all that the act of gift was executed illegally, which constitutes a testamentary fraud. How did Mme. Boursin, who inherited from M. Chauchard, under conditions it were better not to dwell on, from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 francs, consent to give up 5,000,000 to M. Calmette? It has never been explained, but an explanation has been brought to me which I have refrained from using."
